

SHORT TERM GOALS

For me, my biggest motivation right now is to find my specialization at job, find something I enjoy daily and dedicate to it full time, so my short term goals are fully focused on growing up professionally thanks to finding that way. I have a couple of subjects that are of my interest, but I need a bit of time to explore what kind of jobs / tasks are involved in each of them.

LONG TERM GOALS

In the next future, I want to have the job im pushing for, with a good salary that allows me to move with my girlfriend on a new house. I also want that my job gives me mental stability, the facilities I need to grow on my private life and the possibility to continue growing as a professional, and as a longer term goal, I want to have all the knowledge I need to build my own applications, and maybe convert them into my full time job.

SUCCESS

For me, success is very personal, it depends on the way to afford life for every person. My success is to accomplish every goal I have, I don't want to be rich or be famous, I just want stability, enjoy my hobbies, enjoy the people I love, never being out of money in my life and keep being the same person I am right now, but growing with experience in some aspects.

FAILURE

My only fear in life would be to lose everything I have in terms of family, girlfriend and friends. Im not scared of anything that can happen to me in the work aspect, I will always have my knowledge and my way of thinking, and this is way more valuable than any role or company.